The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (PPACA) was signed into law on March 23, 2010. This legislation is considered one of the most significant pieces of legislation since the establishment of Medicare and Medicaid in 1965. The new law will significantly transform the U.S. healthcare delivery system and the practice of medicine. In addition to the Act, other issues are also reshaping the practice of medicine. They include a changing physician workforce, a shift from private practice to large group practice and significant regulatory changes affecting physicians. This program will give a medical-legal overview of the challenges and changes in health care delivery and their impact on the practice of medicine.

Global Desired Learning Outcomes: At the completion of the session, participants should be able to:

- Identify criminal and civil actions and settlements involving physicians and the impact on hospital-physician relationships, employment arrangements, and recruitment arrangements.
- Identify the legal and business considerations involved in maintaining an independent physician practice in the current healthcare environment.
- Describe effective avenues for communication between government and the medical community in the wake of increased regulations and rules.
- Assess why practice-based electronic health records are essential to quality measurement, quality improvement, and related to programs such as pay-for-performance.
- Cite legislative and regulatory initiatives that affect the practice of medicine and understand how these initiatives impact the prescribing of opiates to patients.
- Describe steps physicians can take when offering an apology or disclosure to their patients.
